

UPDATE

September 2015 Volume 46 Number 9

September 6:

"On Loving and Losing"

Rev. Khleber Van Zandt will speak. There is no better teacher in all of sports - and maybe in all of life - than failure. This week a paean to the waning baseball season and to the wisdom the universe makes available to losers of all varieties.

Music: Connor McCauley

September 13:

"Dietrich Bonhoeffer: Martyr, Theologian and Prophet"

Justus Doenecke will speak. Bonhoeffer was a Lutheran pastor in 20th Century Germany who underwent a spiritual crisis and argued for a "religion-less Christianity" and a "world come of age." He became active in the German resistance movement against the Nazi regime. Come hear the whole story.

September 20:

"Sins of the Father: Atonement and Our Responsibility"

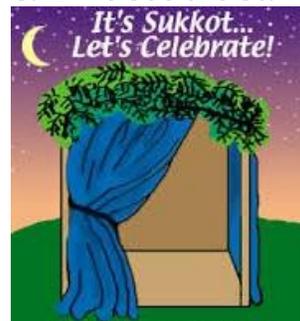

Rev. Dee Graham will speak. Who holds responsibility for the sins of the world, for archaic institutions like racism, sexism, heterosexism? Americans inherit both the honorable intent of our founding fathers (and mothers) and the resulting violence as Europeans populated and took over lands long cherished by the First Peoples. This Sunday following Yom Kippur, we'll explore the Jewish custom of atonement and what this practice might offer us, especially having inherited both the benefit and challenges.

Music: Rex Willis

Special Collection: F.E.L.T.
(Feeding Empty Little Tummies)

September 27:

"Can We See the Stars"

Suzanne Fast will speak. Reflections on fragility and permanence, inspired by the festival of Sukkot.

Music: Betty Comora
